To The Moon editor

Step 1: Choose an NFT marketplace to sell your NFT art

Step 2: Set up a wallet

Step 3: Connect your wallet to the NFT platform

Step 4: Create a digital art file for your NFT

Step 5: List it on your marketplace

Step 6: Promote your NFTs

Step 7: Wait for bids

Final thoughts on selling artwork as NFT

A GIF file was recently auctioned for a whopping $600,000. Also, NFTs worth more than $400 million have been exchanged in the last three years. The NFT market is profitable and is growing rapidly. If you would like to join the market as an artist, the time is now to make the bold step and sell artwork as NFT.

NFTs have been around since 2014, although they have only become popular in the last three years. They are stored digitally in blockchain and have exclusive ownership rights. Due to their unique properties, it's hard to exchange NFTs with any other commodity or even replicate them. The term NFT stands for Non-Fungible Tokens. It is a digital asset that represents the ownership of real items (both tangible and intangible), including digital art, GIFs, music, collectibles, video games and virtual avatars and even event tickets. You can think of NFTs as physical items that are stored in digital files instead of keeping them in physical form.

Selling NFTs art is easy when you understand the basics. Here is a step-by-step guide to creating and selling paintings in NFT marketplaces.

Just when you thought ridiculous Ethereum gas fees are kind of thing from the past, the network makes a sharp U-turn. This time an average fee surpassed the $450 mark in a moment, making it impossible to buy low-costed non-fungible tokens (NFTs).

the best thing about crypto is that it will eliminate those fees we have to pay to banking middlemen

However, that surge didn't stop enthusiasts from buying digital collectibles as the network registered some really weird deals. This time, someone paid over $3,870 in fees to buy a $275 NFT from the Goat Soup by Andy Milonakis collection.

You've read it right. Someone spent almost $4,000 to buy a pixelized picture of a goat. And, apparently, it wasn't the only case as many other "lucky guys" also spent thousands of dollars for relatively cheap NFTs.
